audrey hepburn in berlin

Timeless Audrey, a traveling exhibit based on the life and career of actress, icon and humanitarian, Audrey Hepburn, will make its European premiere at Berlin's Hauptbahnhof, the city's main railway station on March 13, 2009 through May 10, 2009.

As beautiful and elegant as was the woman herself, the exhibit offers over 1,200 items belonging to Miss Hepburn, each artfully displayed in eleven individual "time capsules" spanning her life. Items on display include Miss Hepburn's private wardrobe, costumes, jewelry, letters, books, home movie clips, wedding dresses and numerous other treasured memorabilia.

Timeless Audrey is a fundraising tool that supports UNICEF's "All Children In School" educational initiative aimed at bringing 115,000,000 children, two-thirds of whom are girls, a quality basic education. Education, Miss Hepburn believed, gives children the strongest start in life and offers the best hope for their future.

The exhibit was created by the Audrey Hepburn Children's Fund (www.audreyhepburn.com), a U.S. non-profit organization started in 1994 by Audrey's sons Sean Ferrer and Luca Dotti and long time companion, Robert Wolders.

Both Sean and Luca will attend the opening of Timeless Audrey in Berlin on March 12th / 18:00 - 20:00.

"We are very pleased and proud that Timeless Audrey chose to open its European tour with Berlin after a very successful tour in Japan," says Agnes Fernandes, exhibition representative of the Audrey Hepburn Children's Fund. "For us, the exhibition is a fundraising tool that continues Audrey Hepburn's relentless work on behalf of UNICEF. The revenues raised will go to support our joint venture with UNICEF, 'all children in school' through UNICEF Germany."

Timeless Audrey is being brought to Berlin exclusively by The German Railways, the publicity association of the main railway station, the Berlin S-Bahn, the BVG and DB Schenker and produced by Acksteiner - Agentur für Kommunikation + Ereignisse

Exhibit dates for the public are March 13, 2009 - May 10, 2009.
